Dear Mary,

My writing is going more rapidly than I'd hoped.

Because of my relative immobility plus the fact that my office file cabinets are already overstuffed I've been using space in what used to be called a Desk Organizer for the manuscript. When I ran out of space there I started going over what is in it that I do not now need there. I then found these duplicate copies of records I have apparently made in connection with some planned writing that I not longer remember some time ago.

I send them in the event they may interest you.

Hope all is going as wel, with you and Back as it can.

Love,

Harold
